To all Women's Centres; Women's Groups in British Columbia

From: The British Columbia Women's Music Project

Dear Sisters,

The British Columbia Women's Music Project is a project that has just received funding from the Government of Canada's Opportunities for Youth Program.

Our plan is to, travel around British Columbia to small towns, villages, cities, and reserves in order to catch women's music on tape. We are looking for women who sing, play an instrument or write their own music.

We want to hear women singing about their everyday lives — this isn't a project to tape professionals.

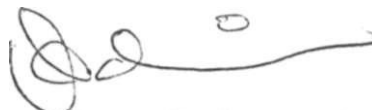

We will bring the tapes back to Vancouver, edit them and set-up a women's music library. The tapes will be available for loan — free of charge to community groups, women's centres and native groups.

But, there's a catch † We need your help. We need you to rap with women who might be into doing a taping session, we need you to send us names, addresses and phone numbers of women you feel might be interested in helping us.

We will be contacting your centre again in order to send posters, flyers etc. and to let you know when we will be visiting your town.

For further information about the project please contact ma at:
768 East Pender Street, Vancouver, B.C. or call (604) 253-9112.

In Sisterhood,
